Contents

Acknowledgments ....................................................................................................................... 8

Foreword Dr. Jim Cummins ......................................................................................................... 9

PART I—BRAVE NEW WORLD: MODERN-DAY REALITIES OF INTERNATIONAL IMMIGRATION / 11

1. Why This Book Matters ........................................................................................................... 12
   But I’m Not an Immigrant! ........................................................................................................ 12
   Facing the Growing Antipathy against Newcomer Populations ........................................ 13
   Uninformed Consent: Am I Part of the Problem or Part of the Solution? .......................... 14
   In Conclusion: How Will This Book Help Me? ...................................................................... 15

2. Meet the Neighbours:
   How New Migration Patterns Are Redefining Our Society ................................................. 18
   Who Will Pay Your Health Care? Why Western Countries Seek Immigrants ............... 18
   You’re Not as Young as You Used to Be: Aging Populations in Western Countries ...... 19
   The Myth of the “Huddled Masses” .................................................................................... 20
   Diversity Rising: Today’s Real Immigrant Numbers .......................................................... 21
   Changing Times, Changing Faces: Where Today’s Immigrants Come From ................ 23
   When Western Countries Stand Up for Human Rights ....................................................... 25
   Money Talks, Money Walks: International Economic Changes .......................................... 26
   Friends and Family Calling across Borders: History in Action ......................................... 27
   In Conclusion: The New “Us” ............................................................................................... 29

3. Uncomfortable Truths:
   How Our Social and Legal Systems Treat Newcomer Families ........................................ 30
   The Myth of the “Illegal Immigrant”: Precarious Legal Status ........................................ 30
   Invisible Lives, Invisible Fences: Living with Precarious Status .......................................... 33
   A Place to Call Home: Lack of Family-Friendly Housing for Newcomers ...................... 34
   Disease Doesn’t Discriminate: Lack of Health Care for Adults and Children ................ 35
   Closed Doors at School ........................................................................................................ 36
   Mommy Far Away: Transnational Families ........................................................................ 38
   In Conclusion: Ignorance Hurts Us ...................................................................................... 39

4. Voices That Have Been Silenced: Day-to-Day Struggles of Newcomers ............................ 41
   You’re Just Not Cool: Cultural Capital and Social Status for Immigrant Teens .............. 42
   “Don’t You Even Know English?” The Double-Edged Sword of Language ...................... 43
   The House Cleaner with a PhD: Employment and Identity for Newcomers ...................... 46
   Cracking under the Pressure: Spousal and Child Abuse ................................................... 46
   Parenting in a Vacuum: Lack of Friends, Community and Supportive Institutions ....... 47
Paved with Good Intentions: Professionals as Expressions of a Dominant Culture... 49
Discrimination Is Ugly but Common ........................................................................ 50
In Conclusion: Up-Hill Battle .................................................................................. 51

PART II—RECLAIMING OUR FUTURE:
EXPLORING NEW PARADIGMS OF COLLABORATION
AND INCLUSION WITH IMMIGRANT CHILDREN AND FAMILIES / 53

5. Thinking Outside of the Box: Theoretical Frameworks for Meaningful
Dialogue and Intervention with Immigrant Children and Families.............. 54

Paulo Freire: Learning the World through the Word ........................................... 54
Pierre Bourdieu: The Power of Cultural Capital .................................................. 55
Luis Moll: Drawing upon Unique Funds of Knowledge ...................................... 57
Jim Cummins: Bilingualism, Identity and Engagement ...................................... 58
In Conclusion: Looking through Different Eyes ................................................... 59

6. How Schools Are Labelling Newcomer Children:
What Is “Normal”? The Example of Latinos ......................................................... 60

Finders, Keepers: Social Dominance as the Basis for Academic Success ........... 61
Stigmatized in the Childcare Setting:
Institutional Discourses and Standards for Truth .............................................. 64
The Russian Doll: Taking a Systemic View .......................................................... 66
Like Branches of a Tree: Multiple Paths of “Normal” Development ................... 67
In Conclusion: The Necessity to Broaden Our Assessment Models .................... 71

7. Shifting the Focus: Identifying Present
and Potential Strengths of Newcomer Children and Families .................... 72

Moving beyond a Narrow Problem Focus ........................................................... 73
Components and Contexts in Healthy Development:
The Benson Assessment Framework ................................................................... 74
What Kind of Support from Others Is This Child Receiving in Her Development?
External Asset Types ......................................................................................... 76
What Individual, Internal Strengths Are Supporting This Child in Her Development?
Internal Asset Types ......................................................................................... 81
In Conclusion: Identifying Assets in Order to Strengthen Them ......................... 83

PART III — BECOMING THE CHANGE WE SEEK / 85

8. Building Bridges:
A Typology of Intervention Programs Involving Immigrant Families .......... 86

What Programs Help Newcomer Families?
Funding and the Problems of Evidence ............................................................... 86
Type I Interventions: Parents on the Side ............................................................ 89
Kids out of Context: When Parents on the Side Doesn’t Work .......................... 91
Going beyond ”I Talk, You Listen”: Conclusions about Type I Interventions .... 92
Type II Interventions: Treating Parents as Equals.................................................................94
Ways of Connecting with and Motivating Parents..............................................................98
Honouring and Building upon Unique Strengths:
Overall Comments about Type II Interventions............................................................99
In Conclusion: Reaching Out, Reaching Up.....................................................................99

9. Newcomer Parents as Conscious, Active Participants in Their Children’s Education: Personal Initiatives with Newcomer Families .... 101

   The Early Authors Program..........................................................................................102
   Parenting Circles.........................................................................................................104
   Learning from Experience:
   Application to New Contexts and Future Interventions..............................................110
   In Conclusion: Valuing Newcomer Parents and Children............................................112

10. Empower Is a Verb: Putting These Ideas to Work ......................................................113

References ......................................................................................................................117