Look Globally - Act Locally: Integrating Care in the Community for Vulnerable Populations

October 20, 2008
Richmond Hill, ON

The Canadian Research Network for Care in the Community (CRNCC) in partnership with the Ontario Community Support Association

(OCSA) presented its fourth symposium in an annual series of fall symposia highlighting crucial issues in home and community care, globally, nationally, and locally.

This year's symposium, moderated by Cal Martell (Ottawa Hospital & Regional Geriatric Program), highlighted key challenges and opportunities for integrating home and community care for vulnerable populations including at risk older persons, persons with disabilities, and those facing mental health and addictions challenges.

It featured top national and international speakers who shared their insights, as well as research into what works and what needs to be done at the local level to successfully integrate home and community care for vulnerable populations.

Featured speakers included (alphabetically):

- Jenny Billings, Centre for Health Service Studies, University of Kent, United Kingdom
- Marcus Hollander, Hollander Analytical Services Ltd, BC
- Kai Leichsenring, European Centre for Social Welfare Policy & Research, Austria
- Janet Lum, Ryerson University and CRNCC, ON

- Henk Nies, Vilans, the Centre of Expertise for Long-Term Care, the Netherlands
- David Pedlar, Veterans Affairs Canada, PEI
- A. Paul Williams, University of Toronto & CRNCC, ON

This symposium also featured a “town hall” discussion which aimed to surface integration challenges and opportunities currently experienced by participants including front-line providers, consumers and policy-makers.

Local panelists included:

- Scott Dudgeon, CEO, Alzheimer Society of Canada, Toronto, ON
- Kathy Durst, Chair, Waterloo Wellington LHIN, Guelph, ON
- Judi Fisher, Executive Director, Cheshire, London, ON
- Cathy Szabo, Executive Director, Central Community Care Access Centre, Newmarket, ON
