As host and co-creator of the CBC national daily talk program, Q, Jian Ghomeshi has garnered the largest audience for any cultural affairs program in Canada. His interview subjects have included Woody Allen, Salman Rushdie, Jane Fonda, Barbara Walters, Radiohead, and a television world-exclusive with Leonard Cohen. His editorials and opinion pieces have appeared in both local and international newspapers and in 2008, he became a weekly columnist for The National Post. In the fall of 2009, Jian was named 'Best Media Personality' in TV or radio by Toronto's NOW Magazine.

In Discussion With ...
JIAN GHOMESHI

Broadcaster, Writer, Musician and Producer

Join us as we talk candidly with the man behind CBC Radio One's Q - exploring the motivations and passions behind his career as a broadcaster, writer, musician and producer. Known for mixing insights and opinion with his trademark unscripted wit, Jian has interviewed an array of prominent figures from Prime Ministers to sports stars and cultural icons.

As a member of the multi-platinum selling folk-rock group Moxy Frivious in the 1990s, Jian toured internationally - sharing stages with artists such as Bob Dylan, Ani DiFranco and Elvis Costello. He currently manages the Juno award winning LIGHTS and has worked with numerous arts groups including the National Ballet, the Canadian Opera Company, and the Radio Starmaker Fund. He is also a former member of the Board of Governors at the Stratford Theatre Festival.
