Cities hold their own magnetic appeal - one that goes well beyond buildings, parks and avenues. Throughout history, major metropolitan centres have attracted people to both their energy and their opportunities. Today, our urban landscapes have become complex tapestries reflecting multicultural origins, historical references, architectural constructs, and human activity. The City As Art will unveil views of three of this city's cultural savy leaders as they share experiences and observations on Toronto's evolving artistic landscape.

THIS PRESENTATION IS OPEN TO THE PUBLIC
ADMISSION IS FREE
