Determines the extent of online communication by festivals for their sustainability practices

Uses Cultivation Theory to determine perceived value creation

Data triangulation through content analyses and interviews

64% of festivals did not communicate any sustainable practices through their websites

Propensity to communicate was impacted by awareness, funding, categorization, timing, and policy

Visit htmresearch.ca for more