ANNUAL REPORT
May 1, 2011 – April 30, 2012

Introduction

This report is to provide members of the Ryerson University community with an overview of the activities of the Office of Discrimination and Harassment Prevention Services (DHPS) from May 1, 2011 to April 30, 2012.

The primary responsibility of the DHPS is to administer Ryerson’s Discrimination and Harassment Prevention Policy and Procedures. Through this, the DHPS provides confidential advice to complainants and respondents; investigates complaints of discrimination and harassment; mediates and conciliates complaints; consults with managers/faculty on investigative processes and complaint strategies for the resolution of complaints; and maintains case files and statistics.

The DHPS is actively engaged in proactive activities to promote an inclusive community through educational and training sessions on equity, diversity, human rights; and due diligence issues, as well as building positive space communities on campus. Other services include referrals to resources within and outside Ryerson; up-to-date information from the DHPS Resource Room; consultations with various sectors of the university on policies and procedures with equity and human rights implications, and collaboration with community members on various projects to promote inclusiveness, diversity and respect.

In this reporting period, the DHPS Office was staffed by Ann Whiteside, Discrimination and Harassment Prevention Officer; Darrell Bowden, Educational Equity Advisor; Katie Solomon, Intake and Administrative Assistant; two summer students, Jasmine Chaykowsky, and Faheem Mulla, as well as one TDSB student Sarah Grenier, and four work study students Jasmine Chaykowsky, Shoshana Erlich, Cassandra Thompson and Eric Siu.
Caseload

The DHPS Office works to empower the individual who has the concern to deal with the matter on their own if at all possible and/or appropriate. DHPS works with students, staff, and faculty with discrimination and harassment concerns to develop strategies to resolve their concerns prior to formal involvement by DHPS. This approach results in the resolution of complaints by the individual through the development of conflict resolution skills, valuable tools which will be transferable to other situations in their lives.

There were a total of 87 human rights related complaints that were handled by DHPS Office for the 2011-2012 year, a decrease of 9 complaints from the previous year.

![Graph showing complaints per year]

Discrimination and harassment complaints are defined as complaints that include the prohibited grounds (i.e. sex, race, creed, age, sexual orientation etc.) as outlined in the Ontario Human Rights Code.

The following pie chart indicates the percentages of complaints based on prohibited grounds.
The grounds of sex (including sexual harassment and gender) combined with stalking/criminal harassment represent 19.09% of the human rights related complaints received by the DHPS Office. This is a 1.29% decrease from the previous year continuing to show that Sexual Harassment, gender discrimination and criminal harassment continue to be ongoing issues for our campus.

Together, race and ethnic origin complaints comprised 24.54% of the human rights based complaints for the 2011-2012 year. This is a 2.96 decrease from the previous year, continuing to make race and ethnic origin a large portion of the DHPS caseload. As Ryerson University has a student, staff and faculty community that is rich in its diversity, race and ethnic origin based concerns remain prominent.

Disability is a large area of complaints for the DHPS Office as 24.55% of the complaints representing a decrease from last year where disability complaints comprised 26.6% of the DHPS caseload. Across provincial human rights commissions there has been a trend of increased disability complaints as more individuals are seeking to validate their rights with respect to full inclusion in our society.

* A complaint is defined as an allegation of discrimination or harassment on a prohibited ground by a student, staff or faculty member of Ryerson.

Total Consultations with DHPS

![Bar Chart Showing Consultations from 2009-2010 to 2011-2012]
Consultations with DHPS

In 2011-2012, the DHPS Office conducted approximately 93 consultations compared to 146 consultations in 2010-2011. Disability comprised of 19.4% consultations. Personal Harassment comprised 4.3% of consultations. Race 4.3% combined with ethnic origin 1.08% represented 5.38% of consultations. Other major areas that faculty, staff, and students consulted on were creed/religion 3.23%, sex 12.9% and many miscellaneous complaints, classified under ‘no ground’ 47.3%. Most of the consultations were with Ryerson staff, faculty and students who were seeking information in order to resolve discrimination and harassment complaints/issues in their workplaces or classrooms. This Office was consulted on scholarships that were targeted to marginalized populations, accessible convocation, developing equity committees, and interpreting equity-based policies and procedures. Staff from other institutions of higher education and community agencies also contacted us to learn about our training initiatives and complaint processes.

Requests for Information

The requests for information to the Discrimination and Harassment Prevention Office decreased from 34 to 23 from 2010-2011 to 2011-2012. These requests for information pertain to a variety of resources such as journals, books, videos, articles on human rights and equity related concerns. We have recently updated the materials in our resource room which has had a major impact on those who utilize our informational services.

Media Contacts

There were a total of 3 contacts from the media during the 2011-2012 year, compared to 18 contacts during the 2010-2011 academic year. The DHPS Office applauds the students’ interest in the area of discrimination and harassment and the fact that they publish stories, conduct research and write papers that raise the awareness of these issues for the Ryerson community.

Education, Training and Prevention Activities

A total of 32 educational/workshop sessions were conducted by DHPS for faculty, students, and staff in 2011-2012 compared to 13 workshops in 2010-2011. There were approximately 1354 students, 64 staff, and 1 faculty members that attended a DHPS workshop. Prevention through education is a major goal of the DHPS Office.

Education and Community Engagement

Ryerson is committed to promoting widespread understanding and discussion of human rights issues across the University. A number of human rights and equity based interactive workshops are held throughout the year for all community members. The following are a representative sampling of the workshops that were held during the 2011-2012 year:
• Empower Yourself: Know Your Human Rights
• Sexual Harassment and Dating Violence
• Harassment in the Workplace
• Positive Space Ally- Introduction
• Positive Space Ryerson II: Skill Building for Allies
• Race, Reality and Relationships
• No Barriers@Ryerson
• Diversity: The Power of Difference

DHPS customized and/or developed new workshops to suit various programs throughout the university. In the 2011 – 2012 we delivered a number of class sessions, customized to the course material. It is encouraging that so many areas of our academic community are including Human Rights and Equity in their curriculum.

Our academic partners for 2011 – 2012 were:

1. Inclusive Classroom and Diversity – Learning and Teaching Office
2. Professional Communications – Race, Reality and Relationships
3. Faculty of Engineering, Architecture and Science
   • CEN 100 – Common Engineering
   • Positive Space – Ryerson Engineering Student Society

6. Chairs and Directors – Health, Safety, Security and Harassment, Legal and Leadership Responsibilities
7. Ted Rogers School of Management
   a. Human Resources
      • Recruitment and Selection
      • Equity in the Workplace
   b. Retail Management
   c. Business 100
8. School of Midwifery

In 2011-2012, the DHPS Office worked collegially with many campus groups to partner and /or sponsor campus activities. Involvement took many forms, from consulting and offering guidance to conceptualizing, planning, and organizing, to sponsoring events with and for students, staff and faculty. A list of the events that DHPS participated in for 2011-2012 were:

- Human Rights: A Managers Primer

  o A website devoted to the Black History Awareness Committee including a timeline, past events, articles, and photo gallery

Acknowledgements

The DHPS Office continued to enjoy the cooperation of our community partners when resolving discrimination and harassment complaints during the 2011-2012 year. In addition, the DHPS Office continues to develop relevant workshops and educational materials for our community. Darrell Bowden has made very important contributions with respect to the range of educational workshops offered by the DHPS. Katie Solomon manages to keep both Darrell and Ann on task with her cheerful, efficient, and organized approach. Thanks to both Darrell and Katie for their contributions.
Appreciation is extended to the many students, staff, and faculty who engaged in the DHPS Office complaint process and helped to make the Ryerson University community a more supportive and inclusive environment.
