AZHAR OSMAN

I think what contributed most to achieving an excellent rating was having open communication with my manager. We met numerous times a week, and during these conversations, I would ask questions, discuss my progress on projects, and speak about my goals and things I wanted to learn.

These conversations helped when he would assign me tasks, as he kept my interests in mind. Additionally, I'd often ask for feedback, to ensure I was improving and try my best to take initiative when it came to working on new projects.
