What is Consumer Packaged Goods (CPG)?

Consumer Packaged Goods are items used daily by consumers regularly that are replaced or replenished. This includes food, beverages, makeup, household products, and more. ¹

About the CPG Industry

The CPG industry is one of the largest sectors in North America with a value of $2 trillion with well-established companies including L'oreal, Coca-Cola, and P&G.¹ In Canada, the CPG industry accounts for one-third of Canada's manufacturing GDP and 40% of employment.²

Unlike the retail industry who sell products to their consumers, CPG manufacturers, sells, and markets physical goods (packaged in some shape or form) used by consumers and sold through a retailer.³

CPG Industry Trends for the Future⁴

These five forces are likely to occur in the future and largely impact the industry profits. Successful CPG companies are those that create value-oriented products and listen to their consumers. Moving forward, CPG companies must find innovative ways to meet the changing trends of consumers and the increase in technology.

1. A billion new middle-class consumers in emerging markets such as China, India, and Indonesia.
2. The rise of the digital consumer will impact brand communication and is an opportunity for "listening" to consumers via social media channels. Successful CPG companies invest into new capabilities required by new media (e.g. rigorous performance tracking, extensive digital-marketing analytics, and flexible vendor management).
3. Shift to value - consumer purchases are driven by value offerings and what exceeds their expectations.
4. Impact of demographic shifts on consumption patterns - find innovative needs to meet the needs of aging consumers.
5. Increasing supply chain resilience - globalized trading allowed for expansion in new markets and resulted in an increase in volatile input costs.

Impact of COVID-19

Since last year, the industry grew by 10.4%. Large and midsize companies saw revenue growth of 7.5% and 9.5%. Small companies also experienced a gain of 15.4%. Moreover, extra-small companies averaged an 18.3 % increase in revenue.⁵

Career Paths in the CPG Industry - they are endless!

There is always opportunity for personal growth and development through different roles within this industry. You will meet amazing professionals, gain new skills, and learn a lot about the CPG industry.

Meet a TRSM Student!

5th Yr. Marketing Student

MICHAL AIZIKOV

I am a 5th year Marketing Co-op student, minoring in Retail Management. I began my co-op with Kimberly Clark in 2020 as the Amazon E-Commerce Intern. Since then, I have been promoted to a full-time Costco Account Manager. In these roles I have improved my analytical and relationship-management skills, qualities that are essential in the industry.

The two pieces of advice I would give other students:

1. Be curious! Grow and learn to the best of your abilities by asking about new projects and challenges
2. Confidence is KEY! Keep your head held high and welcome new challenges.

The BCH has helped me so much along my journey! I highly recommend going to Excel bootcamps, as Excel is a tool that can make your life much easier on the job. Also, book time with your Coordinator to discuss each application and/or interview and prepare.
